WINNER of the Cleveland International Film Festival Documentary Jury Award

TRINIDAD uncovers Trinidad, Colorado's transformation from Wild West outpost to "sex change capital of the world," and follows three transgender women who may steer the rural ranching town toward becoming the "transsexual mecca."

-Directed/Produced by PJ Raval and Jay Hodges

"Though Trinidad is a small town, it's emblematic of the world at large. In this documentary, three main characters make different choices in a society struggling to accept them. The universal themes and the compelling narrative quality of the film make it a must-see." - Ellen Huang GLAAD

"TRINIDAD succeeds in presenting the materials for a better understanding of transsexual people and stands to be very instrumental in making the world outside of Trinidad, Colorado a safer place for them to live." - Film Threat

"Who knew that Trinidad, Colorado, with a population of 6,500, was the sex change capital of world. Well, at least I didn't. This documentary about the small town, follows several of it's transgendered residents including Dr. Marci Bowers — who is herself now one of the world's top doctors for reassignment surgery... capturing the subtle moments of people who's whole life is lived in various states of performance and nuance." - The Advocate

"Fascinating. Avoiding 'before and after' sensationalism, filmmakers Raval and Hodges trace the women's personal stories with curiosity and sensitivity, using quaint, rural Trinidad as a mountain-girdled backdrop." - Austin American-Statesman
